Art Unit: 3736

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Muharib in view of Bar-Ami et al.

Muharib discloses the claimed device except for the use of a filter. Muharib teaches a reservoir (32) for holding motile sperm and a pump mechanism (34) (see column 4, lines 10-17) that deliver the sperm to a catheter that has a fixing balloon (16). While Muharib does not teach the use of a filter to provide the motile sperm, Bar-Ami et al teaches that it is well known to filter sperm to produce the motile or higher viability sperm. Bar-Ami et al teaches a pore size of 5-8 microns to filter the sperm. Therefore a modification of Muharib to include the filtering of the sperm would have been obvious since this would allow for the filtering and delivery to be performed at the same time instead of the need for two separate steps. With respect to claims 2 and 5 whether the filter is placed on either side of the pump is considered to be a matter of routine engineering design choice as long as the sperm is filtered before it is delivered to the user.

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Smith and Weichselbaum et al are cited to further show the state of the art.
